Meet the New Educator

David Lee joined the Paper Discovery Center as its Educator the week of Monday, August 7th. Many people may recognize Dave as a long-time volunteer of the Paper Discovery Center since its opening. He also previously chaired the Education and Exhibits committees at the Paper Discovery Center. Dave's main responsibilities include the development, coordination and presentation of educational programs.

Dave was raised in Appleton. He graduated from Ripon College with a degree in chemistry, and later received his master's degree in business administration from the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh. Dave began his career as a project chemist at Bergstrom Paper Company (now known as Glatfelter Papers). During his thirty-three years with the company, he held positions including technical superintendent, production manager, and mill manager.

Prior to accepting the position of Educator, Dave's recent experience includes serving as an adjunct instructor of chemistry at Ripon College. As a volunteer at the Paper Discovery Center, his most rewarding moments are seeing the enjoyment of the visitors, responding to their insightful questions about paper and papermaking, and being asked "What is hydrogen bonding?"

Dave and his wife, Susan (also a volunteer with the Paper Discovery Center), reside in Appleton.

Please join us in welcoming Dave to the staff. He can be reached at 920-380-7491 or dave@paperdiscoverycenter.org.
